2. Main Terms

1. Purpose and Status

1.1 This Agreement documents the terms on which a trusted volunteer Contributor may assist Study Space.

1.2 The Contributor is not an employee, worker, agent, partner, franchisee, fiduciary, or joint venturer of the Founder or the Project.

1.3 No salary, hourly wage, benefits, expense reimbursement, equity, token, revenue share, or guaranteed compensation is promised unless stated in a separate signed agreement.

2. Founder Authority

2.1 The Founder remains Project Owner, final decision maker, lead architect, commercial decision maker, and repository administrator.

2.2 The Founder may approve, reject, revert, defer, or modify contributions to preserve Study Space's architecture, security, user experience, and commercial direction.

2.3 Contributor input is welcome but does not create voting rights, veto rights, ownership rights, or management authority.

3. Contributor Responsibilities

3.1 The Contributor shall perform work professionally, honestly, and consistently with the Contributor Standards Manual.

3.2 The Contributor shall not introduce malicious code, undisclosed third-party code, unapproved dependencies, secrets, credentials, telemetry, tracking, or security-sensitive changes.

3.3 The Contributor shall document material changes and promptly disclose bugs, vulnerabilities, licensing concerns, or conflicts of interest.

4. Repository Rules

4.1 Repository access is personal, revocable, non-transferable, and subject to MFA, least privilege, branch protection, pull requests, and code review.

4.2 The Contributor may not clone, mirror, publish, transfer, or disclose the Repository except as permitted in writing.

4.3 The Contributor shall not use repository access for any purpose unrelated to Study Space.

5. Development Standards

5.1 All contributions must preserve maintainability, modular architecture, security, testability, accessibility, and documented migrations.

5.2 Business logic should remain outside templates where practical; user-owned records should be associated with users; production secrets must remain outside source control.

5.3 The Contributor shall follow the Study Space architecture and avoid unnecessary rewrites.

6. Governance and Decision Making

6.1 The Founder may set roadmap priorities, coding standards, release plans, branch rules, issue priorities, contributor roles, and commercialization direction.

6.2 Material decisions concerning IP, licensing, privacy, security, monetization, repository visibility, public launch, integrations, and user data require Founder approval.

6.3 Any alleged amendment to governance must be signed by the Founder.

7. Confidentiality and Data

7.1 The Contributor shall comply with the Mutual Non Disclosure Agreement and Developer Privacy & Data Handling Agreement.

7.2 The Contributor shall not access user data unless required for approved development, testing, support, or security work.

7.3 The Contributor shall report suspected security incidents immediately.

8. Termination and Offboarding

8.1 The Founder may suspend or terminate access at any time for security, trust, legal, project, or operational reasons.

8.2 On termination, the Contributor shall stop using access, return or delete Confidential Information, and assist with credential rotation and knowledge transfer.

8.3 Confidentiality, IP, privacy, open-source, non-disparagement where enforceable, audit, and dispute provisions survive termination.

9. Dispute Resolution

9.1 The parties should first attempt good-faith executive/founder-level resolution.

9.2 Counsel should select governing law, venue, interim-injunction provisions, and whether mediation/arbitration is appropriate.

9.3 Nothing prevents urgent injunctive relief for misuse of IP, Confidential Information, credentials, user data, or repository access.
